Response to the Royal Commission of Inquiry recommendations for faith-based organisations

This is a 'living document' and will be regularly reviewed and maintained to ensure actions are met.

Recommendations specific to non-PSUSI individuals and entities have been removed.

Recommendation	Action Plan
Recommendation 1 As an immediate priority, the government and faith-based institutions should implement the 95 Holistic Redress Recommendations in the Inquiry's interim report on redress, He Purapura Ora, he Māra Tipu: From Redress to Pūretumu Torowhānui, together with the Recommendations of the design group, subject to any further Recommendations made in this report.	PSUSI accepts this recommendation. Action: Once the Pūretumu Torowhānui redress scheme has been established, and the process for engaging with survivors and their whānau is advised, the PSUSI complaints policy will be updated to outline the new process. Status: Not completed
Recommendation 3 Public acknowledgments and apologies for historical abuse and neglect in the care of the State (both direct and indirectly provided care) and faith-based institutions should be made to survivors, their whānau and support networks by: a. the most senior leaders of all faith-based institutions and without limitation b. the Chief Executive Officer (or equivalent) of each individual Presbyterian Support Organisation should make public apologies and acknowledgements for abuse and neglect in the care of their respective Presbyterian Support organisation	PSUSI public apology was published on PSUSI's website on 25 July 2024. Action: PSUSI will continue to provide updates about their response via the PSUSI website, including any additional or revised apologies. Status: Completed – ongoing review

Recommendation 5 All entities that provide care, or have provided care, directly or indirectly on behalf of the State and faith-based entities, local authorities and any other relevant entities should: proven perpetrators and institutions where abuse and neglect took place. a. review the appropriateness of any streets, public amenities, public honours or any memorials named after, depicting, recognising or celebrating a proven perpetrator of abuse and neglect in care and/or an institution where proven abuse and neglect took place b. consider what steps may be taken to change the names and what else should be done address the harm caused to survivors by the memorialisation of proven perpetrators and institutions where abuse and neglect took place.	PSUSI accepts this recommendation and will ensure that the names of proven perpetrators of abuse and neglect (past, present and future), will not be recognised or celebrated by the organisation. Action: As names of proven perpetrators of abuse and neglect are confirmed, PSUSI will check whether there are any memorials named after these offenders, and if so, these will be changed swiftly. PSUSI will also support applications for honours to be revoked. Status: Ongoing - as required
Recommendation 6 Where there are reasonable grounds to believe that torture or cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment have occurred in care directly or indirectly on behalf of the State or faith-based entities, and the relevant allegations have not been investigated by NZ Police or credible new information has arisen since the allegations were investigated, NZ Police should: a. open or re-open independent and transparent criminal investigations into possible criminal offending b. proactively and widely advertise the intent to investigate and ongoing investigations c. provide appropriate assistance and support to survivors, their whānau and support networks who contact them in relation to the investigations.	PSUSI accepts this recommendation and will continue to support and encourage survivors to raise matters with NZ Police so they can open, or reopen, investigations. PSUSI will assist and support NZ Police with any investigations and enquiries. PSUSI will always be available to listen to and support survivors, their whānau and support networks, should they wish to contact the organisation directly. PSUSI also wholeheartedly supports the establishment of the Puretumu Torowhānui redress scheme. Relevant PSUSI policy links: Abuse & neglect policy and guidelines.docx Child protection policy.docx Service Delivery policy.docx Code of conduct 2024.docx Complaints policy .docx Actions: PSUSI will continue to actively encourage survivors to raise matters with the NZ Police via their website and any relevant communications.

	PSUSI will draft a new policy/process regarding abuse and neglect in care, which will be linked to PSUSI's existing complaints policy. Once the Puretumu Torowhānui redress scheme has been established, and the process for engaging with survivors and their whānau is advised, PSUSI will update the complaints policy to outline the new process. Status: Not completed
Recommendation 7 Where there are reasonable grounds to believe that torture, or cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment have occurred in care, the State, faith-based institutions and indirect care providers should: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a. provide reasonable assistance to any NZ Police investigation b. take all reasonable steps to ensure an impartial and independent investigation is carried out by an appropriate investigator c. if there is credible evidence of breaches of the law (including breaches of human rights), ensure that appropriate redress is provided to the survivors, consistent with applicable domestic and/or international obligations d. use best endeavours to have the liability of every relevant institution in relation to such acts determined. This may include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> i. seeking opinions from King's Counsel, which are then shared with relevant survivors, on the nature of the conduct and the liability of relevant institutions, including as applicable under the New Zealand Bill of Rights Act 1990. Consideration may also be given to seeking declaratory judgments from the courts. Survivors should be fully supported to take part in these initiatives, including with funding for legal and other expenses ii. not pleading limitation defences in cases brought by survivors, for as long as limitation defences remain available. 	PSUSI accepts this recommendation. PSUSI will assist and support NZ Police with any investigations and enquiries. All serious complaints are immediately assessed regarding appropriate care and support for survivors and their whānau. This could include working alongside existing supports or availability of appropriately skilled staff within PSUSI. PSUSI also wholeheartedly supports the establishment of the Puretumu Torowhānui redress scheme. Relevant PSUSI policy links: Abuse & neglect policy and guidelines.docx Child protection policy.docx Service Delivery policy.docx Code of conduct 2024.docx Complaints policy .docx Action: Once the Puretumu Torowhānui redress scheme has been established, and the process for engaging with survivors and their whānau is advised, PSUSI will update the complaints policy to outline the new process. Status: Not completed
Recommendation 9 Representatives of faith-based institutions and indirect care providers should meet with relevant State representatives and agree on what steps they can take, whether separately or together, to ensure that survivors,	PSUSI accepts this recommendation. PSUSI is happy to work with State representatives, as required, to ensure survivors, their whānau and support networks are made aware of the scheme and support options available to them.

their whānau and support networks are made aware of the puretumu torowhānui system and scheme and support options available to them.	Relevant PSUSI policy links: Complaints policy .docx Action: Once the Puretumu Torowhānui redress scheme has been established, and the process for engaging with survivors and their whānau is advised, PSUSI will update the complaints policy to outline the new process. Status: Not completed
Recommendation 10 The government and faith-based institutions should ensure that, once the puretumu torowhānui system and scheme is established: a. the effective start date for the system and scheme is 1 December 2021, to enable the whānau of survivors who have died since that date to be eligible for redress claims and the full range of support services available through the system and scheme b. it is open to all survivors, including those who have been through all redress processes (including those that have been completed since 1 December 2021) whether or not any signed settlement agreement was full and final.	PSUSI accepts this recommendation.
Recommendation 20 The government and faith-based institutions should jointly establish a fund to provide contestable funding for projects that promote effective community healing from the collective impacts of abuse and neglect in care, like those established in Canada and Australia. The entity holding and distributing the funding should be independent from State and faith-based entities.	PSUSI accepts this recommendation in principle but will need to discuss affordability.
Recommendation 21 Recognising the intergenerational damage caused by abuse in care, the Inquiry recommends that a whānau harm payment be provided for members of whānau who have been cared for by survivors and thereby	PSUSI accepts this recommendation.

potentially impacted by their tūkino, to help prevent further intergenerational harm. The Inquiry recommends this is set at $10,000.
Recommendation 39 The State, faith-based entities (including indirect care providers) and others involved in the care system should be guided by the following Care Safety Principles for preventing and responding to abuse and neglect when making decisions, performing functions, or exercising powers and duties in relation to the care of children, young people and adults in care: a. Care Safety Principle 1: The care system should recognise, uphold and enhance the mana and mauri of every person in care i. each person in care lives free from abuse and neglect and their overall oranga, (wellbeing) is supported in a holistic way ii. care providers understand and provide for each person and their unique strengths, needs and circumstances iii. the importance of whānau and friendships is recognised and support from family, support networks and peers is encouraged, to enable people in care to be less isolated and connected to their community iv. people in care are celebrated and nurtured. b. Care Safety Principle 2: People in care should participate in and make decisions affecting them to the maximum extent possible and be taken seriously: i. people in care can participate in decisions that affect their lives, with the assistance of decision-making supports and/or an independent advocate they have chosen, where required ii. people in care can access abuse and/or neglect prevention programmes and information iii. staff and care workers are aware of signs of abuse and/or neglect and facilitate ways for people in care to raise concerns iv. people who are currently or have previously been in care can participate in decision-making and policymaking about the care system.	a. PSUSI accepts this recommendation and is guided by several policies and procedures (see links below), to recognise, uphold and enhance the mana and mauri of people in care. All policies are audited both internally and externally. c. Care Safety Principle 3: Whānau and support networks should be involved in decision-making processes wherever possible and appropriate:

- i. connections between people in care and their whānau and support networks are actively supported, and whānau and support networks can participate in decisions affecting the person in care wherever possible and appropriate
- ii. care providers engage in open communication with whānau and support networks about their abuse and neglect prevention approach
- iii. whānau and support networks are informed about and can have a say in organisational and system-level policy
- iv. whānau, hapū, iwi and Māori can participate in decision-making processes about their mokopuna and uri.

d. Care Safety Principle 4: The State, faith-based entities (including indirect care providers) and others involved in the care system should give effect to te Tiriti o Waitangi and enable Māori to exercise tino rangatiratanga:

- i. whānau, hapū, iwi and Māori exercise the right to tino rangatiratanga over kāinga and are empowered to care for their tamariki, rangatahi, pakeke Māori and whānau according to their tikanga and mātauranga
- ii. the Crown actively devolves to Māori policy and investment decisions about the care system, design and delivery of supports and services for, and specific care decisions about, tamariki, rangatahi and pakeke Māori
- iii. until the realisation of principle 4(ii), Māori and the Crown should collaborate on policy and investment decisions about the care system, the design and delivery supports and services for, and specific care decisions about, tamariki, rangatahi and pakeke Māori
- iv. tamariki, rangatahi and pakeke Māori who need care live as Māori and are connected to their whānau, hapū, iwi, whakapapa, whenua, reo and tikanga
- v. wellbeing for tamariki, rangatahi and pakeke Māori is understood and supported through an ao Māori worldview, encompassing tapu, mana, mauri and wairua.

ii. care providers have complaint handling policies appropriate for the people in care which clearly outline roles and responsibilities, approaches for responding to complaints and obligations to act and report

iii. effective complaints processes are understood by people in care, staff and volunteers and whānau and support networks and are culturally appropriate

iv. complaints are taken seriously, responded to promptly and thoroughly, and reporting, privacy and employment law obligations are met.

j. Care Safety Principle 10: Physical and online environments should minimise the opportunity for abuse and neglect to occur:

i. risks in online and physical environments are mitigated whilst upholding the right to privacy and ensuring wellbeing of people in care

ii. online environments are used in accordance with organisations' code of conduct.

k. Care Safety Principle 11: Standards, policy and practice should be continuously reviewed, including from time to time independently reviewed, and improved:

i. care providers regularly review standards, policy and practice to prevent and improve responses to abuse and neglect in care

ii. complaints and concerns are analysed to identify systemic issues, both within organisations and within the care system as a whole

iii. people who are currently or have previously been in care are enabled to participate in reviews of standards, policy, practice.

l. Care Safety Principle 12: Policies and procedures should document how each care provider will ensure that people in care are safe:

i. safeguarding practice is prioritised and integrated throughout the organisation

ii. policies and procedures embed safeguarding, and abuse and neglect prevention measures policies and procedures are accessible and easy to understand

j. PSUSI accepts this recommendation and is guided by several policies and procedures (see links), to ensure PSUSI's physical and online environments minimize the opportunity for abuse and neglect to occur. When new buildings are developed, PSUSI carefully considers the layout and material used, to ensure client and staff safety, (e.g. windows in interview rooms, cameras at entry/exit points, alert/lock down buttons in reception areas etc.).

Recommendation 75 All State and faith-based entities providing direct or indirect care to children, young people and adults should review physical building and design features to identify and address elements that may place children, young people and adults in care at risk of abuse and neglect. This should include: a. consideration of how best to use technology such as CCTV cameras and body cameras without unduly infringing personal privacy, including taking into account any applicable guidance documents and the legal requirements for the collection of personal information under the Privacy Act 2020 b. reviewing any policies or processes that place children, young people, or adults in care with c others who may put them at risk (for example, children and young people in care and protection being placed together with children, young people, or adults in the justice system) c. if care settings include physically isolated spaces, for example private offices or a confessional box, ensuring there are tailored measures in place to address the risks arising, including the risk of undetected abuse and neglect d. if care is to be delivered in a geographically isolated or remote area, ensuring there are tailored measures in place to address the risks arising	PSUSI accepts this recommendation and although no longer provides residential care facilities, ensures the buildings services operate from, are safe for clients, staff and volunteers. Te Korowai (PSUSI's Christchurch site) was purpose built to consider the safety of all who utilise the building. Glass offices were created, with frosted panels, to help staff/clients feel safe, whilst also maintaining their privacy. At all PSUSI sites, CCTV cameras are located at the entry/exit of the building. PSUSI reception areas also have an 'alert' button to immediately notify staff that an incident is occurring, and support is required. PSUSI have lockdown policies for all sites All new builds are developed with client and staff safety in mind. Staff are trained and qualified professionals who often work in teams to cohesively manage risk. All staff receive professional supervision and training/development coaching via monthly 1-2-1 meetings. To help protect staff and clients, PSUSI use Damstra Solo (emergency phone alert APP) to help monitor and communicate with staff when they are delivering services off-site, where they are more at risk, e.g. visiting client homes. Many staff also work with clients in schools and other public places. Staff always inform team leaders/managers if they are working off-site and utilise the Damstra Solo App.

Recommendation 80 All State and faith-based entities providing care directly or indirectly should review existing policies and practice to ensure they promote and support the maintenance of connections and attachment to family and whānau wherever possible and appropriate.	PSUSI accepts this recommendation in principle, however, as no longer provides residential care facilities, this recommendation is not applicable.
Recommendation 81 All State and faith-based entities directly or indirectly providing care to children, young people, Deaf people, disabled people, and people who experience mental distress should adopt and comply with best practice guidelines for record keeping and data sovereignty, including the following principles: a. Record-keeping Principle 1: To create and keep full and accurate records. Creating and keeping full and accurate records relevant to safety and wellbeing is in the best interests of children, young people or adults in care and should be an integral part of institutional leadership, governance, and culture. Institutions that care for or provide services to children, young people or adults in care must keep the best interests of the child uppermost in all aspects of their conduct, including recordkeeping. It is in the best interest of children, young people, or adults in care that institutions foster a culture in which the creation and management of accurate records, including detailed information about ethnicity and impairments, are integral parts of the institution’s operations and governance. b. Record-keeping Principle 2: Records to include all incidents and responses. Full and accurate records should be created about all incidents, responses and decisions affecting the safety and wellbeing, including abuse and neglect in care, of children, young people, or adults in care. Institutions should ensure that records are created to document any identified incidents of grooming, inappropriate behaviour (including breaches of institutional codes of conduct) or abuse and neglect in care and all responses to such incidents. Records created by institutions should be clear, objective, and thorough.	PSUSI accepts this recommendation and although PSUSI no longer has residential care facilities, there are robust policies and procedures in place to comply with best practice guidelines for record keeping and data sovereignty. a.) PSUSI uses web-based CMS, Puaa, to maintain full/accurate client records, as able/necessary. Some PSUSI services require staff to use other secure online database systems to maintain client records, as per funder requirements. See links: Client sessions.DOC, Control & storage of documents.docx b.) All incidents and responses are recorded within the client record via the appropriate secure database, e.g. Puaa, other secure cloud-based systems. c.) All records are maintained and secure within the secure cloud-based software – Puaa and/or other secure systems. d.) See policy links previously noted in response to recommendation 81, re: document control and storage. e.) PSUSI will allow individuals rights to access, amend or annotate records about themselves. This includes the right to access records without redaction.

They should be created at, or as close as possible to, the time the incidents occurred, and clearly show the author (whether individual or institutional) and the date created.

c. Record-keeping Principle 3: Records to be maintained in an indexed, logical and secure manner.

Records relevant to the safety and wellbeing of children, young people or adults in care, including abuse and neglect in care, should be maintained appropriately and in an indexed, logical and secure manner. Associated records should be co-located or cross-referenced to ensure that people using those records are aware of all relevant information.

d. Record-keeping Principle 4: Records only be disposed of in accordance with law or policy.

Records relevant to the safety and wellbeing, including abuse and neglect in care, of children, young people or adults in care should only be disposed of in accordance with law or policy. Records relevant to the safety and wellbeing, including abuse and neglect in care, of children, young people or adults in care must only be destroyed in accordance with records disposal schedules or published institutional policies. Records relevant to abuse and neglect in care should be subject to minimum retention periods that allow for delayed disclosure of abuse and neglect by victims and survivors and take account of limitation periods for civil actions for abuse and neglect in care.

e. Record-keeping Principle 5: Individuals' rights to access, amend or annotate records about themselves to be recognised to the fullest extent Individuals' existing rights to access, amend or annotate records about themselves should be recognised to the fullest extent including in a way that is compliant with the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities. Individuals whose childhoods are documented in records held by all entities providing care directly or indirectly should have a right to access records made about them. Full access should be given unless contrary to law. This includes the right to access records without redaction. Specific, not generic, explanations should be provided in any case where a record, or part of a record, is withheld or redacted. Consent of the person who is currently or

was previously in care should be proactively sought if information needs to be shared with family members.
Recommendation 82 All State and faith-based entities providing care directly or indirectly to children, young people or adults should, together with the person in care, document an account of their life during their time in care.	PSUSI accepts this recommendation in principle however, no longer provides residential care facilities.
Recommendation 83 All State and faith-based entities providing care directly or indirectly to children, young people or adults should be required to retain records relating to alleged abuse and neglect in care for at least 75 years in a separate central register, to allow for delayed disclosure and redress claims or civil litigation.	PSUSI accepts this recommendation, and although no longer provides residential care facilities, PSUSI will keep all records relating to abuse and neglect in care as per policy: Control & storage of documents.docx
Recommendation 89 All faith-based entities that provide activities or services of any kind, under the auspices of a particular religious denomination or faith, through which adults have contact with children, young people or adults in care, should comply with the Care Safety Principles (Recommendation 39), the National Care Safety Strategy (Recommendation 40) and all statutory requirements under the Care Safety Act (Recommendation 41), including care standards, accreditation and vetting. Faith-based entities in highly regulated sectors, such as schools and out-of-home care service providers, should also report their compliance to the religious organisation to which they are affiliated.	PSUSI supports this recommendation in [principle, however, no longer provides residential care facilities, and is a separate legal entity to the Presbyterian Church.
Recommendation 90 All faith-based entities should adopt the Care Safety Principles (Recommendation 39), the National Care Safety Strategy (Recommendation 40) and all statutory requirements under the Care Safety Act (Recommendation 41), including care standards, accreditation, and vetting, for each of their affiliated institutions.	PSUSI supports this recommendation in principle, however, no longer provides residential care facilities, and is a separate legal entity to the Presbyterian Church.

Recommendation 91 All faith-based entities should drive a consistent approach to the implementation of the Care Safety Principles (Recommendation 39), the National Care Safety Strategy (Recommendation 40) and all statutory requirements under the Care Safety Act (Recommendation 41), including care standards, accreditation, and vetting, in each of their affiliated institutions.	PSUSI supports this recommendation in principle, however, no longer provides residential care facilities, and is a separate legal entity to the Presbyterian Church.
